Mercy

A calligraphic typeface based on the "Ladies Hand" Style, performed by several Penman.

Ladies Hand

"The Ladie's Hand Style is somewhat very similar to ornamental penmanship, although it uses much longer ascenders and descenders and a modest shading. Originally it had less flourishings, which was ideal for writing long letters. Even though its name suggests a feminine writing style, it was widely used by most male penman and even Spencer reserved the use of the Ladie's style to write to his close friends and relatives, as he considered it a more sincere and heartfelt style.

This present typeface does not restrict to the simplicity of the original Ladies Hand Capitals, and has several OpenType features and flourished capitals which creates a very versatile typeface, while maintaining the elegance of its style.

(With < and >)

You can also type "<" to create an initial swash for the lowercases and ">" to create an ending swash.

Today I will ask you a question
What will you answer me pray?
Are you a child of Tomorrow
Or are you a child of Today?

Teach your mind to think my boy
Your hand to guide a rapid pen
Your heart to love the honest toil
That makes the worker king of men.
